Singapore Overview and Economic Summary

The government of the Republic of Singapore is defined by the Constitution of the Republic of Singapore. The Executive branch of government, made up by the President, is a largely ceremonial position. The Cabinet of Singapore, composed of the Prime Minister, generally directs and controls the Government.² In terms of freest economies, Singapore is number one in the world with an economic freedom score of 89.4. They are the only country in the world that is considered economically free in every index category. It has sustained extraordinary performance and resulted in one of the world's highest per capita incomes and solid rates of GDP growth.³

COVID-19 Impact and 2020 Economic Data

Singapore's government has allocated another eight billion Singapore dollars to support their economy that has had declines due to COVID-19. Singapore was reported as one of the worst economic contractions in Asia for the first half of 2020. Its open and trade-dependent economy took a hard hit as global economic activity was halted by countries taking drastic measures to slow the spread.⁴

Singapore took many support measures enacted by the Prime Minister. They include:

- An extension of wage subsidies by up to seven months until March 2021. The amount of subsidies that companies can receive depends on the projected recovery of different sectors.
- An additional 187 million Singapore dollars in relief for the aviation sector.
- Cash payouts for unemployed Singaporeans for those who have suffered significant income loss, and low-wage workers.
