Designing Your Work for Increased Satisfaction

Presenter: Shanice Webb
Life Design Lecturer & Fellow,
Stanford Life Design Lab

Tuesday, February 14
10:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m. ET
VIRTUAL

What is your ideal work-life vision?
How could you get there?

This two-hour, highly interactive life design workshop will explore how work can be aligned with one's values and ever-evolving goals. For any goal that involves others, gaining support requires awareness of how taking action benefits all parties involved. This session will provide guidance on how to have the necessary conversations for gaining this support.

Flourishing as Researchers:
Best Practices for Personal and Professional Success

Presenter: Michael Wiederman
Professor, Department of
Family and Community Medicine,
University of Alabama at Birmingham

Wednesday, March 29
10:00 a.m. – 11:30 a.m. ET
VIRTUAL

Research psychologists have established four universal human needs or drives related to flourishing that can be used as both an assessment and a guide for a more satisfying life. But how do they apply to your life as a scholar?

In this interactive workshop, participants will discover evidence-based practices for promoting both productivity and psychological flourishing. The focus will be on practical application and integration of strategies into everyday life.

Mentoring

Gain support as you build mentoring relationships and prepare for tenure and promotion.

Wednesday, March 15

In-person Option*

Wednesday, April 12

8:30 a.m. – 5:30 p.m. ET

*Register for and attend either the virtual or in-person session.

As we promote racial literacy across the university, faculty are increasingly called to engage in planned and spontaneous conversations relating to Northeastern community members' diverse identities, perspectives, and lived experiences. The ADVANCE Office of Faculty Development and Social Impact Lab have created Essential Conversations workshops to provide faculty with the information and expertise to navigate such conversations. Essential Conversations workshops introduce facilitation techniques designed to optimize the benefits and minimize the unintended harms from potentially polarizing conversations about race, identity, power, and privilege.
