Industries

Gavin Logan is an attorney specializing in technology and telecommunications. Based in Washington, DC, he has served as attorney advisor for the Federal Communications Commission, director of tech telecom policy for the National Urban League Washington Bureau and assistant general counsel for the District of Columbia Office of Cable Television, Film, Music and Entertainment.

Logan has provided expert opinion on policy issues such as diversity in the tech industry, algorithmic bias and privacy. He chaired the FCC's Diversity in Tech working group, including leading a team of diversity experts to meet with tech industry leaders to develop industry recommendations on improving diversity in the tech space. Logan obtained his JD from Northeastern University School of Law and his BA in political science from Brown University.
